Tasty Modern is a metaphorical smorgasbord of contemporary art for the consumption of art ideas investigating the art of taste-making. Practising London-based artists working with sculpture, drawing, painting, print-making and photography are invited to drop off work in this unselected showing of works where the walls and floors of the gallery space transform themselves into a table-top assortment of Tasty Modern Art. In a thinly-veiled yet flavoursome dig at one of the temples of modern and contemporary art, Tasty Modern is a tongue-in-cheek look at current contemporary art practice in London. A participatory area in the gallery will give visitors an opportunity to respond directly to the exhibition.

This is an exhibition opportunity for practising artists to have their work seen in an open and vibrant curatorial structure. Tasty Modern is an open unselected public exhibition.
